Mary's
BRANDS™

Best known as the developer and exclusive distributor of the award-winning Transdermal Cannabis Patch, Mary's is transforming how people view and utilize cannabis. We develop products that maximize the benefits of cannabinoids, terpenes and other plant nutrients.

In addition to being the first company to deliver transdermal cannabis products, Mary's was first to market THCa and CBN. We discovered harvesting techniques for the isolation of CBC and continue to develop new cutting-edge approaches for isolating, manufacturing and marketing cannabis.

From our founder and partners to our scientists and production associates, our passion is paramount in everything we do.

Mary's was the first company to deliver transdermal cannabis products such as our award-winning patch.

WHO IS MARY?

Mary is everyone. Mary is not one singular muse. Mary is that part inside of us that strives for a better quality of life.

OUR PURPOSE

An alternative to medicine. Not alternative medicine.

OUR MISSION

Distilling the wisdom of plants to help people reach the full potential of their bodies, minds and lives.

OUR PROMISE

At Mary's, we aim to advance the global understanding, acceptance and adoption of cannabis.

The Mary's Difference

Envisioning A World Without Pain

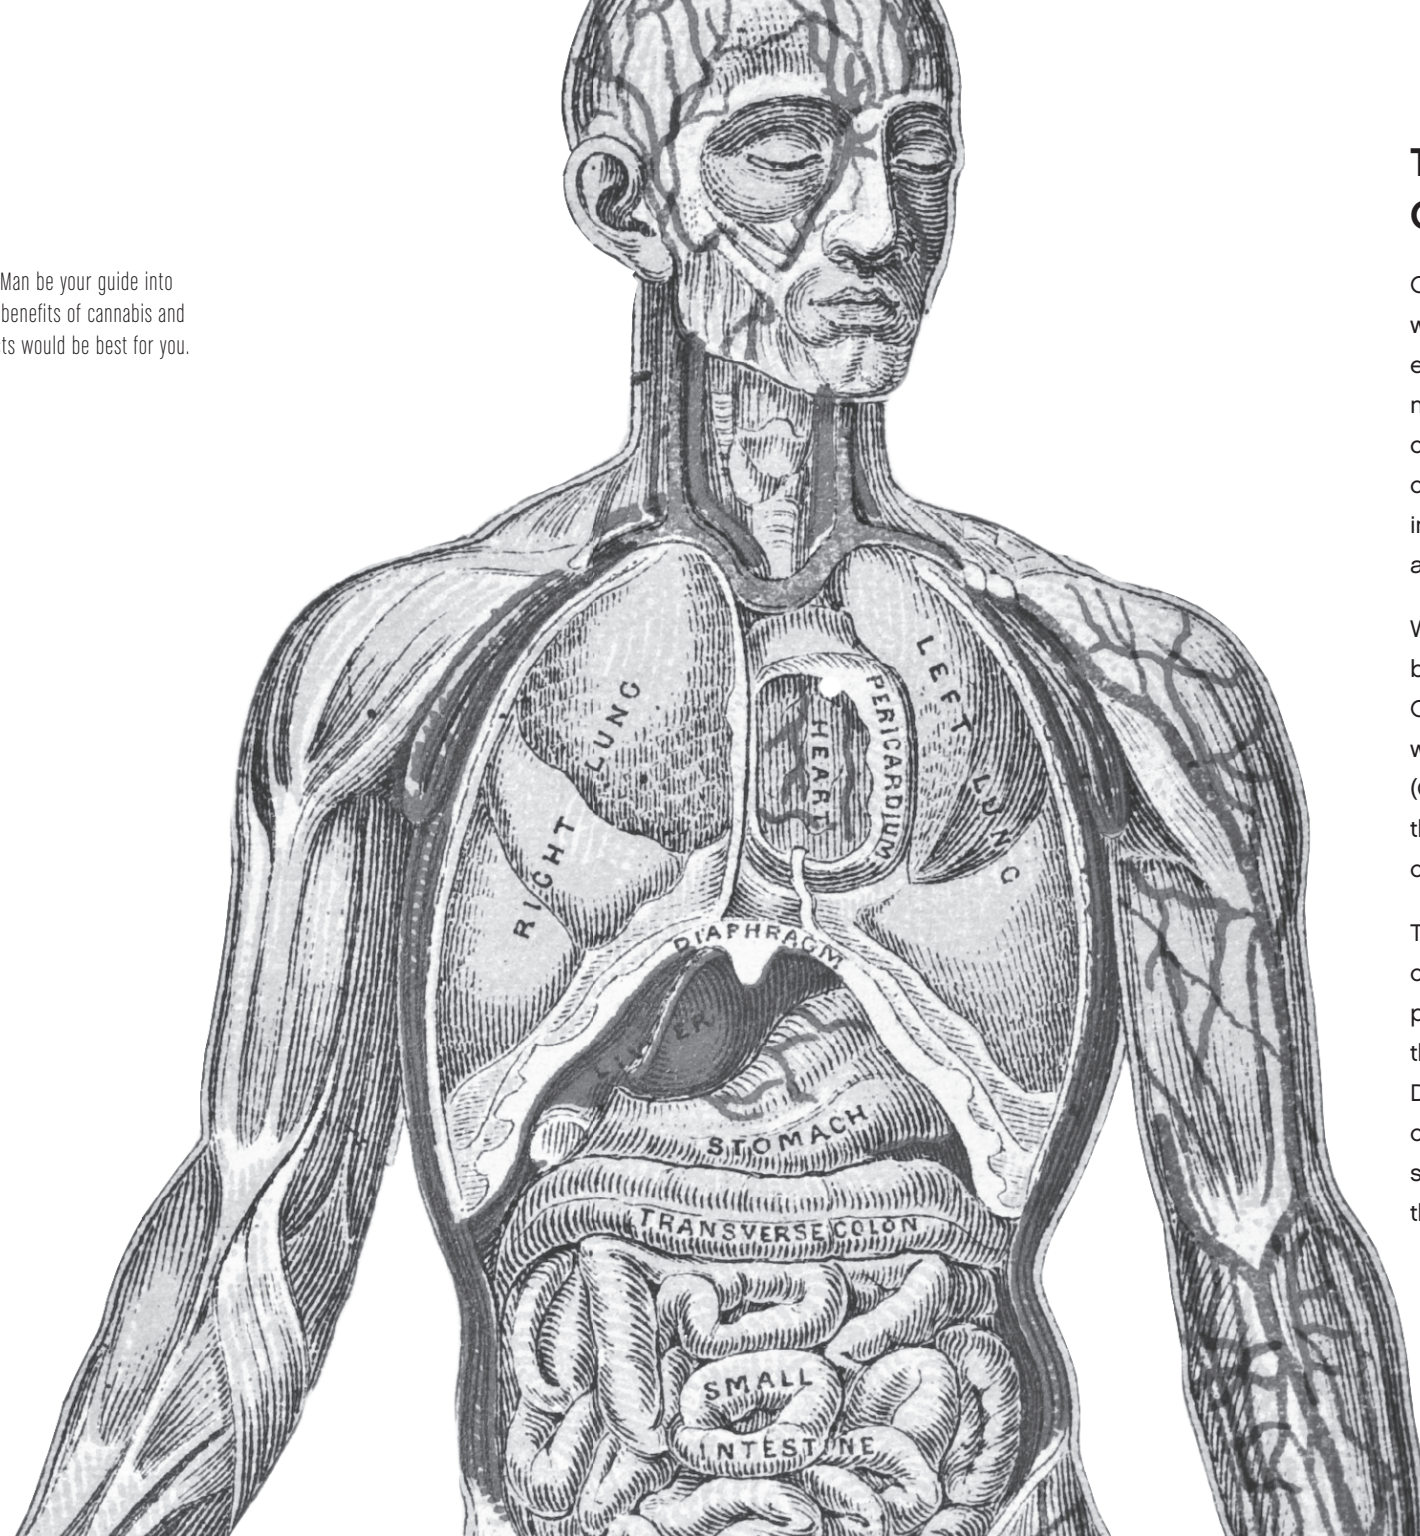

Bringing novel delivery methods and horticulture together, Mary's is transforming how people view and utilize plant-based alternatives for relief. Mary's products are infused with full-spectrum hemp extract that is 100% organically cultivated by its longstanding partner, Elite Botanicals in Colorado. Unwaveringly committed to transparency, Mary's tests all raw materials and final products through in-house and third-party laboratories to ensure purity and consistency.

As the developer of the first transdermal patch enriched with full-spectrum hemp extract with naturally occurring CBD, patented transdermal gel pen technology and award-winning topicals, Mary's believes in the effectiveness of clean delivery methods. Transdermal and topical applications offer a wide array of benefits, such as the elimination of smoking, bypassing first-pass metabolism (from oral administration), dose control, continued release, convenience, ease of use and systemic effects.

Science Smart.
Plant Wise.™

The Science of Cannabinoids

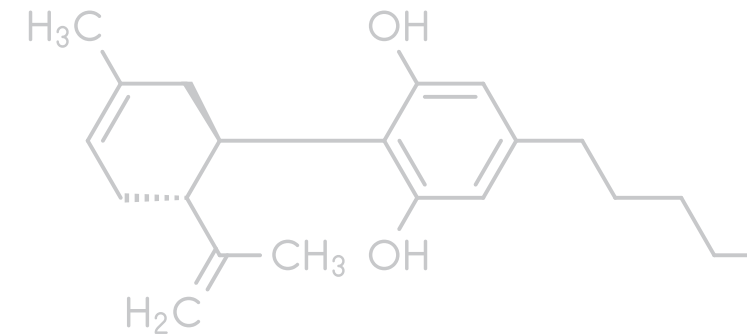

Cannabinoids are the chemical compounds within cannabis that interact with the body's endocannabinoid system. Cannabinoids resemble naturally occurring endocannabinoids, compounds our bodies produce to balance and control cell communication in the endocannabinoid system including communication around hunger, pain and anxiety.

When cannabis is administered, cannabinoids bind to receptor sites in the brain and body. Cannabinoids have different effects based on which receptors they bind to. For example, CBN (Cannabinol) binds with CB-2 receptors located throughout the body, which may explain why consumers report that it has analgesic properties.

Terpenes and terpenoids are the primary constituents of the essential oils of many types of plants and flowers. They give cannabis varieties their distinctive properties, aromas and flavors. During the process of extracting essential oils from cannabis, terpenes are often lost. However, Mary's strives to maintain or replenish vital terpenes in the creation of all of its products.

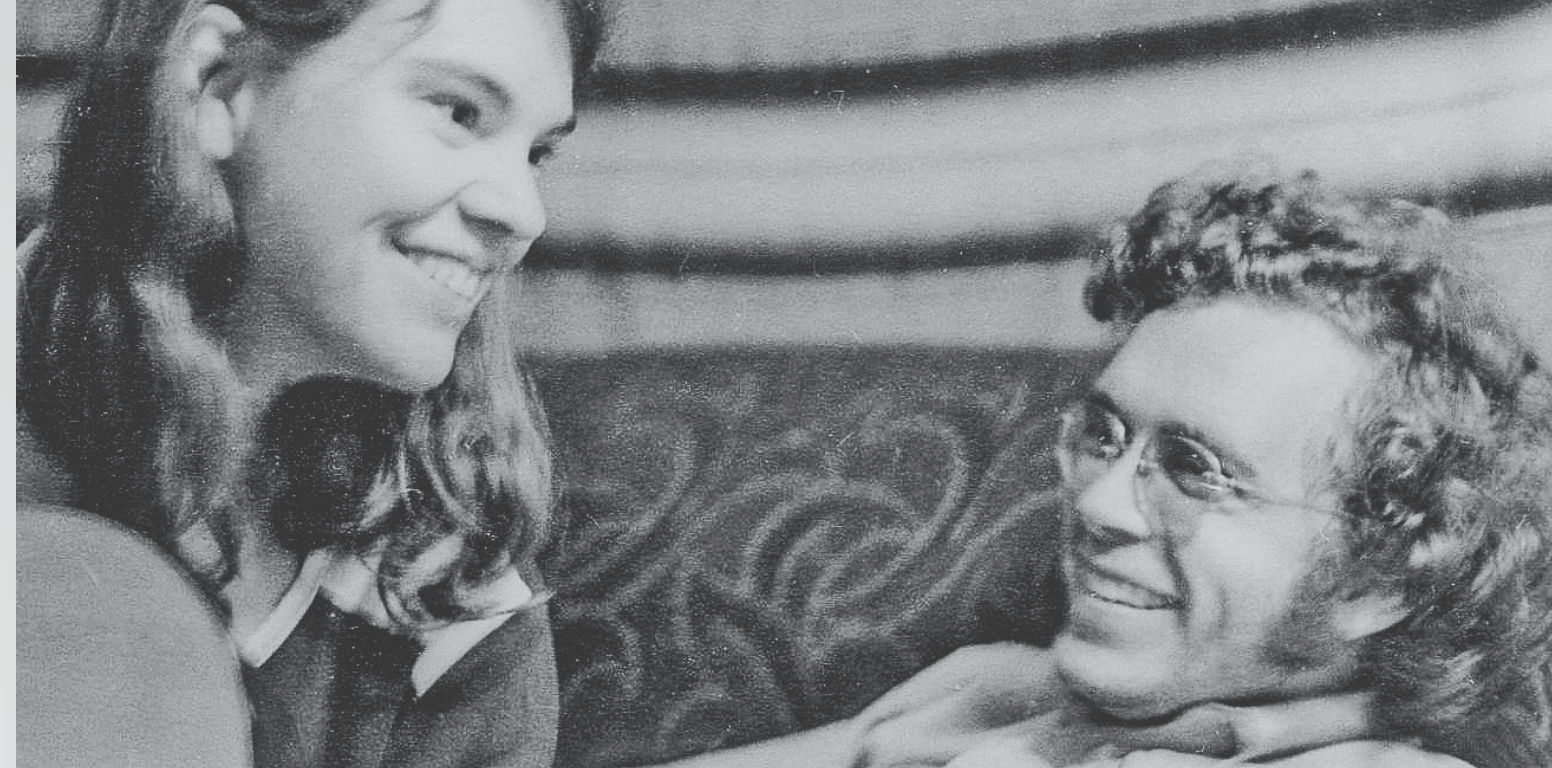

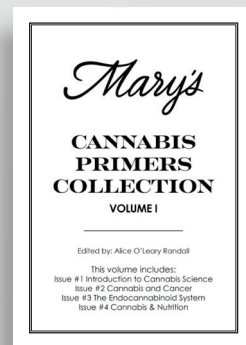

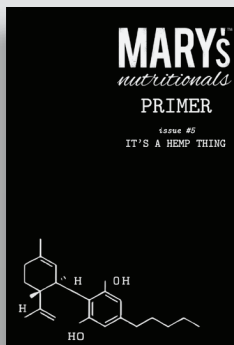

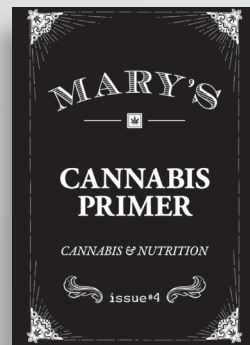

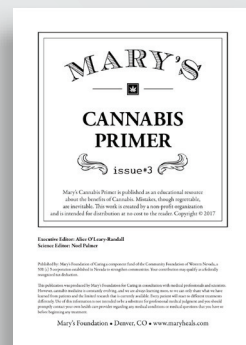

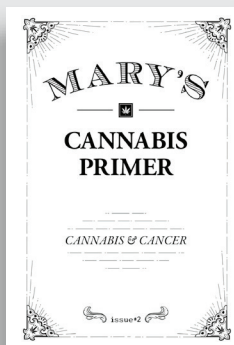

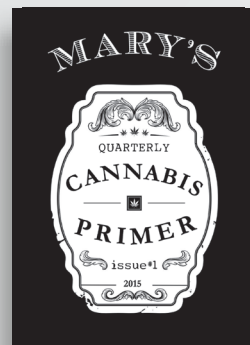

Understanding Bioavailability and Dosing

Research shows that transdermal delivery is the most effective method of delivering cannabis to the body, as it enters the bloodstream directly. When smoked or eaten, patients may lose up to 70 percent of the cannabis consumed via air vaporization, metabolism and stomach acid, which is inefficient and makes accurate dosing difficult. Mary's transdermal products are so effective that the dosing of a standard 10mg patch may be equivalent to that of an 80mg edible. With optimized bioavailability, Mary's products offer a reliable, consistent dosage. Like all medicines, an individual's dosage is based on many factors such as age, body composition, diagnosis, etc. One patch is a typical dose for most patients, although some prefer to cut a patch into halves or even quarters, while others may use more than one patch to attain the desired effect.

Mary's Publications

Our mission at Mary's is to advance the global understanding, acceptance, and adoption of cannabis and other plant-related medicines. With this in mind, we created Mary's Publications specifically for patients and consumers. Mary's Cannabis Primers focus on hot topics such as the endocannabinoid system and cannabis and cancer. Mary's Prime Time blog highlights cannabis conferences held all over the world as seen through the eyes of the "First Lady of Medical Marijuana," Alice O'Leary Randall.

Alice O'Leary Randall

Alice is a senior spokesperson for the medical cannabis movement, co-founded in 1976 with her late husband, Robert C. Randall, the first person in the U.S. to legally receive medical cannabis. For more than two decades Robert and Alice worked tirelessly to reform the prohibitions against cannabis. After Robert's untimely death in 2001, Alice became a hospice nurse and later a grief counselor. She retired in 2012 and re-entered the medical cannabis field. She frequently writes and speaks on the issue.

Working with Mary's Medicinals, Alice developed the Cannabis Primer series in 2015 and Mary's Prime Time in 2017 (available at MarysPubs.com). Her most recent publication is Mary's Cannabis Primers Collection: Vol. I., available on Amazon.

Proudly helping our patients reach their full potential through innovative cannabinoid therapies.

MEDICINALS™

Everything we do—from product research and development to education—advances the global understanding, acceptance, and adoption of cannabis and other plant-based medicines.

Novel use of plant nutrients

Mary's is transforming how people view and utilize cannabis, developing products that maximize the benefits of cannabinoids, terpenes and other plant nutrients. Mary's was a pioneer in releasing the first THCa, CBN and CBC therapeutic options. As our product suite expands, so does our ability to source and utilize other unique plant extracts, cannabinoid and terpenoid profiles.

Clean delivery methods

As the developer of the first transdermal patch, patented transdermal gel pen technology and award-winning topicals, Mary's believes in the effectiveness of clean delivery methods. There's a wide array of benefits of transdermal and topical applications such as the elimination of smoking, bypassing first-pass metabolism (from oral administration), ease of use and other systemic effects.

TRANSDERMAL: Relating to, being, or supplying a remedy in a form for absorption through the skin into the bloodstream.

TOPICAL: Designed for or involving local application and action (as on the body)

Mary's was the first Colorado cannabis product manufacturer to acquire in-house Ultra High-Performance Liquid Chromatography (UHPLC) testing equipment. In 2018, Mary's obtained a Gas Chromatograph-Mass Spectrometer (GC-MS) to expand its in-house testing capabilities, support ongoing research efforts, as well as contribute to the optimization of the current product suite and the development of novel offerings.

Perhaps the most distinguishing characteristic is our unwavering commitment to everyone who uses Mary's products. We are proud and humbled by each and every story, each and every person, for whom our products offer comfort and relief.

Is it safe to provide cannabis to animals?

Cannabis is widely known to be non-toxic to humans and animals, however, animals that eat THC containing cannabis can become quite ill. Since these products are a derivative of cannabis that contains only CBD and negligible to zero amounts of THC, there are no psychoactive effects. Your dog will definitely not get high. Our team of scientists has worked closely with leading veterinarians to ensure the safety and efficacy of these products for all animals over 5 lbs. For animals less than 5 lbs., we recommend consulting your veterinarian.

What about dosing?

Dosing with cannabinoids is very individualized and involves many factors - metabolism, diet, other conditions, etc. Some animals find a positive effect with a very low dose, while others require a higher dose. It's always best to start on the low side and titrate as needed. Many people use 1mg/10lbs of weight as a general rule of thumb.
