

Wharekauhau Lodge and Country Estate

MARTINBOROUGH, NEW ZEALAND – This intimate gem is set on one of the oldest working sheep stations in New Zealand, at once offering true authenticity and impeccable hospitality. Whether it's a leisurely walk on the hotel's 12-mile coastline, a challenging hike up to a mountain peak, an afternoon spent strolling the exquisite gardens that overlook nearby Palliser Bay or a horseback tour of the giant working historical farm, a variety of activities celebrate the local culture and natural landscape that make Wharekauhau so special. For visitors looking for the ultimate in relaxation, the on-site day spa offers massages, facials and body treatments.

Twenty staff members attend to guests in the 13 Cottage Suites, which are constructed from natural materials like New Zealand wool, hemp and pebbles. Each cottage also includes heated floors and towel racks, double spa baths and open gas fireplaces. At the heart of the property, The Lodge serves as a gathering place for guests. The building's many rooms feature antique furniture, oversized fireplaces and comfy nooks for relaxing. The traditional country kitchen opens into the dining room, offering a behind-the-scenes glimpse into the chefs' seed-to-skillet approach. Much of the produce is sourced from the farm, where staff raise their own sheep and beef, grow their own vegetables, keep their own honeybees and forage for wild mushrooms. Recommended since 1986.
